House Call (Kadelya)

Kadelya took a deep breath as she approached the old garage. It was in one of the denser neighborhoods of Alabaster, and the houses were more run-down than they were by the coast. She double checked the address that her mistress had texted here, and it was the right house, the garage matched the picture. Her heart was almost dancing in her chest as she walked up the driveway and stopped at the garage. There was a raising door for a car, but on the left there was also a regular door, and it had a bright yellow and black sign reading “Private Property,” with a black and white sign under it, “No Trespassing.”

She knocked at the door. There was a clatter from inside, followed by a stream of expletives muffled by the door. It took a moment for the blinds on the side of the door to get pulled back, and then for the door to open.

“Hey, so it’s a heck of a mess in here,” Terra said, her voice a little bit husky. “I... don’t really have anybody over. If that’s a problem for you, then you can, y’know, fuck off.”

“Or you could visit my place,” Kadelya said, tilting her head to the right. “But I guess my Mistress would prefer the home field advantage, right?”

Terra rolled her eyes and opened the door. “Yeah, whatever, Class Pres. You live at the freaky sex cult compound, guess I shouldn’t be surprised you’d throw that out so easily.”

Kadelya shrugged and stepped inside past the mouse, her brow furrowing as she set her suitcase and purse down on the garage floor. “How to put this... I don’t like when people call my family a cult. There’s no real belief behind the commune. Dad says it was incorporated, legally without any religious background, when my big sister was adopted.”

“Whatever, that’s just what people call it,” Terra said, closing the door. “Look, I don’t do this much, but I did try to research this whole sleepover thing, so we can talk and shit as much as you want. Since you offered to let me hypnotize you...”

“After you started without my consent,” Kadelya said, holding up one finger on her left hand. “But if you researched you should know the first thing a host does is show her guest around, right?”

“I was getting to that,” Terra said, grumbling as she tried to get back onto an apparent script she’d set up. “I just wanted to say that since you’re gonna let me practice my kink on you, maybe we should get to know each other a bit. So... Now I’m ready to show you around, princess.”

Kadelya grinned a bit as Terra turned around. She never got to sub for Sophie. Mark was only really into it because she was, and he wasn’t a very good dom apart from his confidence. And nobody else was around who would play with her this way. “Got this place all to yourself, huh?”

“Yeah, after I blew up a laptop battery in the house, my uncle let me take over the garage,” Terra said. “So downstairs here is my lab. Whatever interests me, as long as I don’t blow the garage up. Which is pretty much everything robotic, computers, and y’know, mind control.” Terra seemed to shudder a bit at the last. “Which I wouldn’t tell anyone except you, catslave.”

Kadelya smiled. Terra was opening up to her. That was exactly according to plan, letting Terra do something intimate with her like hypnosis should give them a chance to get closer. Even if it wasn’t romantic, or even if it was just transactional, Kadelya wasn’t really looking for another girlfriend. But if it happened, having a girlfriend as a mistress would be convenient and hot.

Terra walked past workbenches full of cool-looking devices in various states of assembly and disassembly, not really pointing any of her experiments out. “Don’t touch my things without permission,” she said. She stopped by a ladder. “Apartment is up the ladder from inside, but the bathroom is down here.” She pointed off to the right.

Kadelya nodded slowly. She had noticed the garage floor was just a slab of concrete, with some rubber mats thrown down in what she assumed were major walkways. “So you pretty much live on your own here?”

“Uncle has to pay the bills and keep me fed until I graduate,” Terra said, starting to pull herself up the ladder. “Set your shit back behind ladder. I made an elevator.”

Kadelya nodded and walked around the wall the ladder was fixed to. There was an old shipping palette with some plywood nailed on top of it and cables at each corner. By the simplest definition, it was an elevator. She put her suitcase on top of it, and her purse, then walked back around to climb up the ladder.

She glanced up and saw the ladder was clear. Curses! Terra had outsmarted her desire to peek up the mouse’s skirt by distracting the submissive-feeling cat with the elevator. “I’m coming up,” she said, raising her voice enough to be clearly heard.

She started to climb when she felt the wall begin to vibrate. Terra must have started the elevator. She wondered if the apartment would be as messy as the workshop floor and in her musings felt her head bang against the ceiling.

“Oww! Why is the ladder...”

“Elevator safety,” Terra said firmly through the wood panel. “The ladder lets out onto the elevator floor or roof, so the ladder door needs to be closed when the elevator is running.” The tone she used made it sound so obvious, and maybe it was, but Kadelya hadn’t thought about that. Then again, as a vet, she didn’t always think about mechanics much...

“That makes sense,” she muttered. The vibrations stopped and Kadelya heard four metallic KER-CHUNK sounds. After a short wait, the door at the top of the ladder opened to Kadelya’s left, and Terra grunted as Kadelya saw her securing a latch up to the wall. “Sorry, I didn’t think about the arrangement,” she said as she pushed herself up the top of the ladder, her clawtips digging slightly into the wood of the elevator floor for grip.

Terra huffed and puffed more like a wolf than a mouse, and Kadelya couldn’t help but grin. “So, mistress, why don’t you teach your catslave how to operate this for you?”

“Wh-what? What are you smirking at? Do I need to spank you for being insolent, you bitch?” Terra’s voice got tight as she spoke, husky again in a way that just made Kadelya want to purr, even though she was enjoying teasing the mouse. “Or is that what you’re after? Are you a masochist who wants me to spank her?”

“Pretty sure I’m not a masochist,” Kadelya said, unable to suppress her giggling. “But I am a brat. Or at least, I’m trying it on. I’m a switch, and all of my partners right now are submissive.”

Terra blinked a few times. “Oh? Don’t you have a lot of people in your commune or whatever?”

Kadelya took a deep breath. “Yeah, but they aren’t fucking pedos,” Kadelya said. “And because I grew up around them, it doesn’t matter how hot the adults are, I see them all like parents and uncles and aunts. So nobody there can really play with me, even if I wanted to play with them. Come on, that should be as obvious as the layout of the ladder and elevator, right?”

Obvious Facts (Terra)

Of course that was obvious. The freaky sex cult had standards, and tried not to abuse their kids, huh?

“Yeah, I guess so,” Terra said, snorting. “Alright, fine. So, uh, finish the tour. I mean, not that it’s too tricky. The main door is in the back, past the elevator, into the kitchen. I don’t cook much except ramen and instant frozen shit.” She started walking around the elevator.

Kadelya rocked and bounced herself up, grabbing the outer cable and swinging around it to face the kitchen. It wasn’t much, but it had a vinyl flooring that offered decent grip for pads and socks, the cabinets were all some damaged parts that had been dirt cheap, and the only real fixture was the sink, though it had no waste disposal, so Terra had to keep a mesh in the drain to keep it from clogging. Kadelya scurried into the kitchen even as Terra watched. “So what do you drink? I don’t see a water filter on the tap,”

“Vanilla Coke. And I can’t handle too much caffeine myself, so I get decaf and add my own vanilla,” she said. “Tried some other flavors, but vanilla is the only one I care for, help yourself if you like the lime or orange syrups. And for water, I have a filter attached out back. Tap’s clean.”

She walked over to the full-sized fridge and opened it up. It mostly had sandwich fixings, salad mix and dressings, and what even she considered an ungodly amount of soda cans, all with red and dirty brassy color scheme that Coke used for their caffeine free offering. “Catch,” she said, tossing over to Kadelya. Not that she was much for aim, but the cat had the sort of reflexes one would expect of her species, and caught it easily enough. As the fridge closed, Terra set her own can on the counter and opened the upper cabinet nearest the fridge, and got out a wire rack with three flavor syrups and room for a fourth. She cracked open the can and added one pump of vanilla to her can then swished it around gently.

“So that’s the kitchen.” Terra turned to Kadelya, who was opening her own can of cola. Terra grunted. “So, it’s all a studio layout, from the garage door the kitchen here is back-left, my library and school computer are back-right, and the front is my living space and bedroom. I don’t really split those up too much.” She turned and gestured toward each room as she mentioned it, then started walking up front. “Any questions?”

Kadelya took a sip of the soda and narrowed her eyes. “Mmm...” she was swishing the syrupy liquid around her mouth like it was her first time ever drinking a Coke. “Is it weird to say this is too sweet? Oh, questions for you, you mean?”

Terra snorted at that. “Have you never had a Coke before?”

“Nobody has it caff-free,” Kadelya said with a shrug. “And we make our own soda at home, daddy says trying to order for everybody’s taste would be too much trouble. Oh! I have a question for you, mistress.” She paused for a second, then added, “If I may?”

Terra nodded. “Go ahead, slave. What’s your question?”

“Do you plan to fuck me tonight?”

Terra’s eyes went wide at the absolute bluntness of the question. How should she even answer that? Of course, they were both old enough, but she didn’t have near enough control over Kadelya to do that yet, but if Kadelya wanted to do it, did Terra need to rely on control? She still wanted it, obviously, but...

“I think for tonight...” She swallowed deeply. “Fuck. Look, I never expected this shit to happen. I wanted to hypnotize you and make you obey me, yeah, maybe fuck you, but mostly make you humiliate yourself by making you a fucking nerd who would cream herself if she got a wedgie or called a dyke. But then you kinda blew that idea up by knowing what was going on.”

Kadelya frowned at that. She took another sip from the can, her muzzle scrunching up at the taste she'd called 'too sweet.' Terra was worried she had upset the cat. “How did me consenting to this blow... oh. Oh! You wanted to do it without my consent! But... you know you can't just do that sort of thing in real life, right? It's not like the stories.”

Terra let out a deep sigh. “Oh yeah, well it was...” She paused herself. Of course she knew the legal acceptability of it. And what most people would think of it ethically. “You're right. But I'm messed up like that. And impulsive. So...” she hated what she was about to say, but knew it was necessary. “Sorry I dropped you without asking. Thanks for not turning me in.”

There was an extended silence as Kadelya walked to the living room area. As she stood next to Terra, she reached a hand out to touch the mouse's. “I wouldn't turn in my first change at a proper domme,” she said softly. “But, yeah, doing it without asking was kind of rude. But you did a good job, and when I did realize it enough... you agreed to do it better.”

Terra nodded. Slightly. “Yeah, whatever. So, I guess if you're gonna let me do this, I should get to know you a bit. You told me a bit about what you know the other day... but I want to know more.” It was obvious this was the right way to approach this. Even if Terra didn't care about keeping everything “right” as she continued, she needed Kadelya to trust her after the fuck-up in the lecture hall. “So... You have partners. You said you're a switch and they're subs, right? Do you hypnotize them?”

“Of course,” Kadelya said, stepping onto the futon mattress laid out on the floor. “Oooh, fair's fair, mistress. Can I ask you question too? To get to know my mistress better?”

“Fine, but... I reserve the right to not answer.”

Kadelya giggled, the slight tittering sound setting Terra's nerves on edge. “Oh... well how about we make it more fun. You want to fuck me, I want you to fuck me. So how about making a stripping game out of it? If we refuse to answer, we take off one piece of clothing.”

Terra rolled her eyes. “Hmm?” She really hated when other people gave her rules. But this could be fine. “Fine. Ask your question.”

“You were more socialable when you moved here in 4th grade,” Kadelya started, holding up her left hand with her thumb folded in. “And we were in the same class that year too. So, why did you transfer in?”

This was Kadelya playing her little friendly game? This question was where she wanted to start? To get closer to Terra? “I'm not going to answer that right now,” Terra said, taking a deep breath. She kicked at her left heel with her right foot, loosening the sneaker. Then she did the same for the other, rolling her eyes. When both were loosened, she shook them off and held out of stocking-clad feet, the thigh-high striped socks shaking in front of Kadelyas face. “There, shoes off. My turn. What’s the most fucked up thing about your life?”

Caffeine (Kadelya)

Kadelya’s mouth opened, but nothing came out. It was probably the kind of question she deserved for the one she had just asked. The most fucked up part of her life? She didn’t want to lie. She didn’t want to pass, even though it would only cost her a bit of her outfit. But she wasn’t sure she wanted to actually admit this.

“The year you transferred in,” she said, taking a deep breath. “I found out the way my parents play in their bedroom. And that they get really. Really, really. Like super duper fucked up edgeplay. Not just the stuff everybody jokes about the commune being a cult... but I accidentally caught them doing a pred-prey scene with mom... I know it was just a scene, but mom was threatening to put him in the pot and serve him to us, the whole commune, for dinner if he didn’t, y’know, submit.”

She let out a deep sigh and closed her eyes. The growling in her mom’s voice, the smell of blood and sweat, the fear she’d felt back then that it was a real threat. It all came back to her. The way she had ducked out of the doorway, and listened to her daddy scream, covering her mouth fearing that mommy would put her in the pot too if she was noticed.

Of course, mommy had noticed. The next word her mom had said was, “Towertop.” And that meant playtime was over. She had come out to comfort Kadelya, to reassure her. But the young kitten was still scarred by it. And by other scenes she sometimes wandered into, after that point, after getting home from school earlier than mommy and daddy had expected.

“When daddy’s on top, he and mom definitely do some cult-like play with him as a god. When mommy’s on top, they do predatory hunt play. And... they do it less now. But they both really enjoy rough sex, and they, they don’t always go to a sound insulated room for it. They said they always tried to do it only when none of us kids were home. Or after we were all asleep. But obviously, they didn’t always wrap up before we got home.”

She squeezed her eyes tighter. “We’ve had a lot of talks about sex, okay? I knew about bad touches before I started school, because daddy wanted me to have agency. He wanted me to know he’d always believe me if someone touched me in a bad way. C-c-consent, it’s like s-s-super important to my family. And and n-n-n-now just ans-answering this... are you h-x-hhappy?”

She looked over to Terra. The mouse’s jaw was hanging open. Probably not the answer she’d expected, Kadelya figured. “My turn, right? You made your point, let’s keep it light for now... what’s your favorite...”

“Hold up,” Terra said, sticking out her free hand. “Caffeine. Right? We can’t just keep playing around after you dump that shit on me!”

Kadelya stopped and looked at Terra. This was a surprise. Terra looked worried. Concerned. “O-o-okay,” she said slowly. “S-sorry. Sorry m-m-mistress,” she said, shifting to actually face Terra. “You probably thought I’d talk about some f-f-fucked up ff-ffantasy, right? Like getting off on noncon or lolis?”

“I, I didn’t know what I was expecting, but those are closer to it for sure,” Terra said not quite sure how to process what she had just learned. “So you parents just like, do this shit in the open at home?”

“Th-they were in th-their bedroom,” Kadelya said. “Miss Kelly... our cook, sh-she picked us up from sch-school. I wanted to show them my marks on a project. I think it was book report, but that’s n-n-not the...”

“Okay, but any normal kid who saw that,” Terra paused and Kadelya should see her thinking. “Therapy, right? Did you ever get therapy for it, or have you just been suppressing it all these years?”

“Oh, I g-got therapy,” Kadelya said. “And I, I g-get how fucked up things between loving partners are sometimes fine. With... c-consent. With... s-say-safeties like safe, safe words. Signals. And so I generally don’t think too much about the sp-spiff-spiffic scenes I’ve stumbled into ara-around m-my home. Because I know,” she raised her paw, and pointed up to the top of her head. “I n-know, they consent. And I can’t help the t-trauma, but I... I get help to p-process it. Because I know it’s just play. N-ne-negotiated. C-consensual.”

“You’re stuttering,” Terra said, sliding onto the futon mattress. “Which... is kind of cute. Maybe cuter if you had a lisp, but the point is this is real fucking trauma. Are you sure you’re okay?”

Kadelya took another deep breath in. “You made your p-point,” she said. “I sh-shouldn’t have a-as-asked you why you m-moved here. We’re n-na-not close enough for that.”

“Not my question,” Terra said, hissing her words out. “I asked if you are sure you’re okay. Because it’s no fun to break you if you’re already broken, princess.”

“I... I don’t know,” Kadelya said, admitting it to herself. “I prolly shs-shoulda just t-tay-taken my shirt off in-instead.”

It hurt to admit that. That it did still hurt her that much. But she still felt like she could trust Terra, even though the mouse had literally just admitted she wanted to break her. But Terra wasn’t a therapist. She couldn’t fix what two therapists over the past ten years had only helped her bury the trauma of by working through parts of the symptoms by not thinking about it.

But maybe... maybe there was a part of her that was curious. That wanted to explore the edges of what could be okay. And maybe, she told herself, experiencing that would help her understand it even better. Maybe well enough to move past the trauma.

“Look, it’s not fair to you,” Terra said, her voice a bit grumbly. “You tell me something more fucked up than I could imagine about yourself. So look, I won’t tell ya the whole story, spill my heart. But the short version is my mom got sick. She and dad couldn’t look after me, so I got sent out to my uncle here. And when she got better... I decided to stay here.”

Pollyanna (Redux) (Terra)

“Everybody calls you Pollyanna,” Terra said, helping Kadelya move onto the sofa. Letting the cat slump over the right arm, she grunted. “I guess that name’s more accurate than they know.”

Kadelya took a deep breath, her body lying limply across the sofa, tilted just enough to avoid crushing her tail. “Heh. Heheh. What else can I do?”

Terra’s ears twitched. That was one of the songs from that new movie. “I’m not about to hug you,” she muttered, pushing the cat’s legs aside. “I want to break you, to make you mine. And isn’t mind control edgeplay too, princess?”

Kadelya sighed. She was still stuttering as she talked, “yeah, kinda. I guess the difference is I know mind control is fun. I’ve probably seen way too many appealing depictions of it to get upset by the idea of... y’know, being mind controlled.”

Terra forced herself to take another sip of her vanilla Coke and looked sideways at Kadelya. A willing subject was something she hadn’t ever considered. “Well, this is kind of confusing,” she said softly. “Like, honestly, I never planned on asking you for permission. Or anybody else, honestly. I want to seize power because I’m better than my slaves.” She tilted her head back.

“Miss Sarah says all fantasies are valid,” Kadelya said, a slight purr in her stuttering voice. It almost sounded like she was hiccuping hearing the two sounds together. “And I’ve had fantasies of just pouncing on someone too. Hypnotizing them, making them my pet, my slave, my toy. And... of being the one taken, too.”

Terra closed her eyes for a moment. The two young women sat for a moment in a sort of quantum silence. Somehow it was both awkward and comfortable. Comfortable in a way Terra seldom felt, even when she was alone. Something she couldn’t remember if she had ever felt before. “I can kinda get why pred prey can be hot,” she admitted. “But... there’s like a scale. Chasing and catching is fun. A little nibbling can be fun. But as much as I want to break you, I want you able to obey me. It’s not fun to threaten to eat you. And I’m a vegetarian anyway. I guess... I'd never threaten you like that. But I would totally talk down to you and insult you and make you see me as unworthy of my attention."

The catgirl purred softly, not breaking the general silence by speaking. Her tail swished slowly off the front of the sofa, brushing against Terra's leg.

"You remember the rules I gave you," Terra said. "I mean, do you?"

"Yeah," Kadelya said. "Nobody else dommes me. Edge for you, mistress. And nobody else hypnotizing me, right?"

Terra smiled. "You okay with those?"

Kadelya purred more deeply after a few seconds. She shifted her body too, and as Terra opened her eyes, she saw that the feline had moved her legs from behind her and now they were lying across her lap. She couldn't stand up without moving them. And she noticed for the first time that Kadelya hadn't been wearing shoes at all.

"Use your words, princess. Are you okay with those rules?" Terra suspected the answer was affirmative. But if Shadow was going to consent, she decided she should make sure that consent was absolutely clear. "The only valid options are 'yes mistress,' and, 'no miss Kelly,' got it?"

Kadelya smiled as her purr got even deeper. "Yes mistress," she said, slowly, purring, sensually, almost seductively. "I want a mistress. Your rules... are a good starting point. My vixen has similar rules from me."

Terra reached her right hand out slowly, unsure where to set it. "Are... Are you feeling better now?"

Kadelya nodded slowly. "Mistress, you shouldn't be so nervous if you want to touch your slave. You're my hypnotist and my mistress, and I agree to be your slave. So... Shall we pick the game back up? Wasn't it my turn?"

Terra grinned at the permission, and grabbed at the catgirl's belly, reaching under her shirt, no shirts, to do so. The fur was soft, but she could feel the firm muscles underneath. If she were a submissive, she might swoon a bit at the feeling of such a well toned predator's tummy under her paws, but with no interest in submitting or being prey, it just gave her a sense of admiration. She might want to let her slave get soft later on, but right now, the enforced athleticism of public school felt kind of nice under her hands.

Kadelya, for her part, kept purring. Her tummy trembled under Terra's firm touch, and she looked up towards Terra.

"And your rules were that I use your safe word, I can't control your subs, and no sex at school, right?" Terra felt her lips curling up, making her bucktooth seem even more pronounced. "And we're not at school, are we, princess Pollyanna?"

Kadelya squirmed a little bit, nodding. “Yes mistress,” she said, her breathing getting heavier. “We’re at your home... so if you want...”

“If I want I can do anything,” Terra said, gripping the firm abdominal muscles. “You’re my toy, my slave, my pet. I can do whatever I want with you, can’t I? Until you use your safe word?”

Kadelya nodded eagerly, and blurted out her response. “Yes, Mistress. Those were my rules.”

Terra took a deep breath. As strange as this encounter had gotten, she wanted to play with her toy now, even if she only had a primitive level of actual control combined with the apparent consent of the catgirl. She wanted to take control without worrying about programming right now. And if her victim was so enthusiastic, why not just play with her food?

“Then get off my couch, strip, and show me your body.” And while you’re at it, find the bright side of being my property, princess Pollyanna.”
